Women’s Peace & Humanitarian Fund
In Lebanon

The United Nations Women’s Peace and Humanitarian Fund (WPHF) is a global partnership re-energizing action and accelerating support for women’s participation, leadership, and empowerment in humanitarian response and peace and security settings. WPHF is a multi-partner trust fund mobilizing urgently needed financing for local organizations led by and working alongside women on the front lines to build lasting peace.

In Lebanon, the WPHF focuses on independent and newly emerging civil society organization targeting women and girls who face multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination – those organization that specifically suffering from lack of funding and exclusion in decision making processes.

Meet Youssef Rafiq Mallah, Head of the Beirut Regional Center Civil Defense Operations Unit.

Youssef has enrolled his Civil Defense team of eight women and four men to advance gender-responsive disaster management planning in cooperation with civil society members under the UN Women ‘Participation in Disaster Management Accountability’ Project led in partnership with the local NGO Auberge Beity.

“Women make up half of our society, having their voices heard in disaster response planning is vital.”

Meet Major Fadi Touma, Commander of the Gemmayze Police station

Committed to being better prepared for disasters in future, Major Fadi Touma and his platoon participated in the ‘Disaster Management Accountability’ project, which brought together ISF members and women affected by the Beirut Blast to develop disaster management improvement plans.

“Community policing encourages community members to engage with security work, so they feel more engaged in the safety of their neighborhood.”
Dar Al Amal
With Them, and For Them

In 2022, Dar Al Amal continued to create safe spaces for women to acknowledge the service needs in their communities by empowering a core group of eight women to advocate for women’s better access to services and enhanced participation in decision-making.

The core group undertook a series of trainings to support them in establishing a mechanism for collaboration and dialogue amongst service providers and service recipients in Sin El Fil and Bourj Hammoud/Nabaa areas.

PROJECT HIGHLIGHTS

132 women influenced better access to services, including:
1. Gender-based violence services
2. Health services
3. Legal services

180,000 people indirectly benefitted from the response

13 CSOs committed to three of the recommendations outlined in the needs assessment

One report highlighting the gender-responsive service needs and recommendations in the targeted communities

“She Knows Better, is the slogan of this project. It holds the fundamentals of community work because it starts with the needs of the marginalized population, acknowledges their capabilities, knowledge, skills and builds the interventions with them and for them.”
- Hiba Abou Chakra, Dar Al Amal Project Coordinator.

“For the first time, I was at the same table with the stakeholders in the area to make change on the ground.”
- Khadije Jaber, core group member.
Fe-Male
Response & Coverage

In 2022, Fe-Male conducted a Gender Media Audit which consulted 20 organizations to identify and analyse the strengths, good practices, weaknesses, gaps, and challenges in the institutional mechanisms and processes for gender mainstreaming in Lebanese media.

A Gender Media Audit of the Beirut Blast Aid, Response and Coverage

Prepared by:
Tala Ramadan
Hayat Mirdash

Following the Audit, Fe-Male sought to redefine the media stories shared during the Beirut Blast through a digital media campaign that amplified women's voices and included a series of infographics on the rights and needs of women and marginalised groups affected by the Beirut blast.

Journalist Mirella Abou Khalil took to the street and explored the experiences and urgent needs through conducting a series of interviews with members of underrepresented communities, such as sex workers, ex-offenders, elderly, single mothers, daughters, and members of the LGBTQ community, whose perspectives are rarely represented in mainstream media. We learn from Mirella’s interviews that many women, particularly those from underrepresented groups were denied their right to justice following the August 4th explosion.

Sonia
Sonia* reflects on how the blast and the crisis in Lebanon have affected vital access to aid and resources for the trans community.

Mirna
Mirna, is one of at least 800 people suffered temporary or permanent disabilities during the blast, she shares her story.

Rim
Rim*, reflects on her experience of feeling alienated from society after serving time in prison, especially after the blast.

Women frontline workers are warriors
Hear from the women who were on the frontlines responding to the devastating Beirut explosion. Two years after the blast, these warriors are still there to serve their communities amid the complete absence of the government.

Madanyat & ONDES
A Journey of Strength and Reconciliation

In 2021, Madanyat & ONDES supported 19 women to establish two women’s committees in Sin El Fil and Bourj Hammoud. In addition, the women committee members undertook trainings in public speaking, communication and advocacy, and mobile phone photography to support them in rolling out community initiatives in 2022.

And in 2022, the two committees led a series of community initiatives to enhance women’s meaningful involvement in local decision-making and planning, and engagement in political participation.

Women increased their representation and participation in local planning and decision-making processes.

Four issues voiced by women through the efforts of women committees were addressed by local decision makers.

WPHF in Lebanon
The Way Forward

The Women’s Peace and Humanitarian Fund (WPHF) together with the United Nations in Lebanon has launched the second window of its financial support to eight women-led organizations in Lebanon that are working on community peacebuilding in Lebanon, as part of strengthening their institutional capacity and maximizing peacebuilding results.

“The WPHF has indeed lived up to the expectations and delivered impressive work in its first round. We are all proud of the seven inspiring organizations we have so far partnered with and wish the new participants success. Germany renews its trust in the fund and in the civil society organizations that have courageously stepped up in response to Lebanon’s enduring crisis.”

- H.E. Andreas Kindl, The German Ambassador to Lebanon

“We continue to have to fight for their voices to be heard, despite abundant evidence on the link between women’s participation and peace. We need more women in decision-making and in peacebuilding efforts to ensure Lebanon’s sustained recovery.”

- Najat Rochdi, former UN Resident and Humanitarian Coordinator for Lebanon

“We owe it to those championing peace on the frontlines to provide them with timely and accessible funding that is responsive to their realities.”

- Rachel Dore-Weeks, Head of UN Women in Lebanon

SELECTED ORGANIZATIONS

The WPHF second window is supporting eight additional projects led by 11 female-led grassroots organizations with the aim of improving the political participation of women and their engagement in matters of peace and security. Three will be supported under the institutional funding stream, and eight under the programmatic funding stream.

Stream 1 – Institutional Support

SEEDS
SEEDS is a women-led human rights organization, and a phase 1 WPHF grantee. Under Phase II, the organization will receive institutional funds to support it to retain key personnel, engage in strategic planning and raise new resources.

Haven for artists (H4A)
Haven for artists (H4A) is a feminist art organization working at the intersection of art and activism, and a phase 1 WPHF grantee. Institutional funding will be provided to the maintenance of Haven House and the development of a new strategic and financial long-term strategy.

Abnaa Saida El Balad
Abnaa Saida El Balad is a women-led youth organization in Saida. As a new recipient of the WPHF, funds will support the organization’s core activities and the organization to develop an adaptive strategy and a detailed plan for its gender equality program.

Stream 2 – Programmatic Support

Green villages
Green villages promotes women’s economic empowerment through ecological solutions while promoting women’s activism. The project funded by the WPHF will work in remote and border Syria, bringing together women’s groups to discuss about different issues affecting their communities, and engage with local authorities.

Women alive
Women alive works in the north of Lebanon. The project promotes peacebuilding and women’s participation and engagement. It will target female university students in clubs and the broader public through campaigns and dialogue with municipalities on topics of gender-based violence, peacebuilding, and political rights.

SEENARYO
SEENARYO utilizes participatory theatre for the empowerment of communities, partnering with Women Now for Development. The project will target local Lebanese and refugee women living in the Bekaa, as well as community leaders from local municipalities and CSOs, with the aim of supporting the integration of women’s voices and priorities into local decision-making.

Committee of Employee Women Union (CEWU)
CEWU is a women’s rights/led organization focused on equality issues. CEWU aims to politically empower women through skills building on promoting peace and conflict resolution in their communities, as well as public debating and mediation.

Led in partnership with Smart Center and Creadel.

Lebanese Family Planning Association for Development & Family Empowerment (LFPDA)
LFPDA is a women/youths rights organization. Work funded under the WPHF seeks to increase women’s political participation at the municipal level in 15 villages in the regions of Tyre and West Bekaa.
